the epitome of Christian kingship are of particular importance for the Middle Ages. It is therefore understandable that the controversial anti-king Otto IV, who supported the project of the shrine with generous donations, is included as the fourth king.

His successor to the first Christian kings and thus conducting political propaganda in the struggle with the papacy.
The architectural elements are more emphasized in the Eilbert Shrine and to the Eilbert Shrine fifty years earlier. The image of the three kings is the image of a Romanesque basilica, as that of the triadra

The shrine was originally decorated with 226 ancient — stones. The oak core is covered with gilded silver and copper. While front wall, a gift from the anti-king Otto IV, is made of silver.
